Carpaccino at the Industrial Harvest Café, Eastern Creek.

Wednesday, 1ˢᵗ June, 2022.

This was a great first (cool) day of winter, a lovely sunny day spent with the good and entertaining company of members of the My Car Club "family" (the "MCC family").

The weather was proof that we are indeed lucky to live in Australia where a winter's day features sunshine and clear skies but still provides the bite of a winter's day!

Some people brought their classic cars along and parked outside. I spotted a Triumph, a Mini, a collection of older and newer Fords, a Studebaker and several Mercedes, both old and new, in all, a good mix of motoring eye-candy.

What I enjoy about the MCC is the social interaction where there is an opportunity to talk about things beyond the cars. One of my interests is handcrafts and hobbies and I had an opportunity to discuss this with Linda Daws who has similar interests.

Alex tells me that the MCC was a kind of "spin off" from the Mercedes' Owners' car club and that a lot of MCC members were originally in that club, and that some still are, but having a Mercedes vehicle is not a requirement for membership of the MCC.

Mark Hertz, as usual, has once again found an interesting venue, located in a large, new industrial estate at Eastern Creek.

The food as good, the décor was "post-industrial modern" (I can blame Alex for that term!), and it is a credit to the fellow who started the venue.

I noticed that whilst we all drove here in our road cars, outside on the roadway it was a sea of trucks and it appeared that cars are a rarity in this industrial neighbourhood.

As I looked around, I could see that everyone was engaged in lively conversation and laughter, just enjoying themselves and each other's company.

I am so happy to be part of the MCC "family" and look forward to many more outings with all of the members.

Once again, I would like to thank Mark for his efforts to ensure that we all enjoy ourselves at these events.

Cheers,

Reporter of the day.

Margaret Wilkinson